Dear Dr. Hammarskjold:

PU 211 SB illinois

I was delighted to learn from Mr. Cordier that you will be with us on Sunday, May 1.

As he has probably told you, we discussed with him the possibility of your speaking here at the Law School on April 30. He has explained to me, however, that your schedule is such that this would be very burdensome, and that, of course, we wish to avoid.

We are, therefore, looking forward to your delivering a public address in our new auditorium on the evening of Sunday, May 1.

I know how exceedingly demanding your schedule must be. In order, however, that we may send out our invitations in ample time I will much appreciate receiving the title of your speech as soon as you have decided upon it.

Let me say again how much we are looking forward to having you with us.

Sincerely yours

James M. Ratcliffe

Dear Dr. Hammarskjold:

I am pleased to enclose herewith a complete program for our forthcoming Dedicatory celebration and Special Convocation.

I shall appreciate receiving from you, at your convenience, three pieces of information. First, we should like to have for the final version of our program, a title for the speech which you will deliver on May 1. Second, we shall be pleased to provide academic dress for you if you will inform me of your height, chest measurements, weight, and head size. Finally, we should like to know when and where you plan to arrive in Chicago so that appropriate arrangements for meeting you may be made.

Allow me to say again how pleased we are that you will participate in our celebration.

Sincerely yours,

James M. Ratcliffe
Assistant Dean

Dear Dr. Hammarskjold:

I enclose herewith a ticket for the dinner which we are holding prior to your address on Sunday, May 1. And, in case we are fortunate enough to have you with us for part of the program on Saturday, April 30, a ticket for the dinner on that evening as well. I hope no one has the temerity to ask you for a ticket, but in an undertaking of this kind there is likely to be some confusion, and I would therefore like you to have them.

I shall appreciate your having me informed, as soon as the arrangements have been made, as to when and where you expect to arrive in Chicago, and also as to when you are leaving. We will, of course, want to have someone meet you.

We are looking forward to having you with us next week.

Sincerely yours,

James M. Ratcliffe
Assistant Dean
