Dag Hammarskjöld's samv.

Trip to Geneva 1960

June 30

David A. Morse (Director-General, Int. Labour Office, Geneva)

— to Sec. Gen.

GENEVA

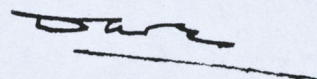

Personal

30 June 1960.

My dear Dag,

I have, since the last meeting of the A.C.C., had an uneasy and growing impression, which may I believe be shared by a number of our colleagues, that the manner in which we discharge our collective responsibility as members of the A.C.C. needs further reflection and consideration. Before attempting to express my views in writing or to discuss them with any of our colleagues, I would welcome an opportunity of exploring the whole position with you informally. If you would care to dine with me alone at my apartment when you are in Geneva during the coming weeks we might perhaps usefully explore the whole position together. I should be glad to be available for the purpose on whichever night would be most convenient to you.

Sincerely,

David A. Morse,
Director-General.

Mr. Dag Hammarskjöld,
Secretary-General,
United Nations,
NEW YORK.
