Peking story

10 Dec. 54

Statement by Sec. Gen. in the General Assembly, following the vote on the U.S. item on the 11 airmen

10 December 1954

Mr. President,

At the end of this debate I would like to state that as Secretary-General I assume the responsibilities imposed on my office/in the resolution just approved/^{DEEP SENSE} with a ~~strong feeling~~ ^{OF} the importance of the issue. I need not assure you that I will do everything within my power ~~to act so as~~ to serve ~~in the best possible way~~ the interests of this Organization.

In the final paragraph (4) of the resolution the Secretary-General is requested to make continuing and unremitting efforts for the release of the persons concerned "by the means most appropriate in his judgment". I interpret this qualification as applying generally, ^{INCLUDING} ~~that is~~ also ~~to~~ the ^{SET FORTH} mandate ~~included~~ in paragraph 3. Several speakers, especially the distinguished Delegate of France, have made statements supporting me in that view.

In paragraph 4 there is also a request for a progress report "on or before 31 December 1954". I am sure to interpret this demand correctly, if I do not see in the date mentioned a dead-line, and if I, in meeting my obligation to report, do so in the way which in my judgment is most in harmony with the interest of the task pursued.

Here again I can base myself on what has been stated in this debate, with special clarity, by the Delegate of France.

STATEMENT BY SECRETARY-GENERAL DAG HAMMARSKJOLD IN THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY, FOLLOWING THE VOTE ON THE UNITED STATES ITEM ON THE 11 AIRMEN

Mr. President,

At the end of this debate I would like to state that as Secretary-General I assume the responsibilities imposed on my office in the resolution just approved with a deep sense of the importance of the issue. I need not assure you that I will do everything within my power to serve the interests of this Organization.

In the final paragraph (4) of the resolution the Secretary-General is requested to make continuing and unremitting efforts for the release of the persons concerned "by the means most appropriate in his judgement." I interpret this qualification as applying generally, including also the mandate set forth in paragraph 3. Several speakers, especially the distinguished delegate of France, have made statements supporting me in that view.

In paragraph 4 there is also a request for a progress report "on or before 31 December 1954." I am sure I interpret this demand correctly, if I do not see in the date mentioned a dead-line, and if I, in meeting my obligation to report, do so in the way which in my judgment is most in harmony with the interest of the task pursued. Here again I can base myself on what has been stated in this debate, with special clarity by the delegate of France.
