History of the Republic of the Philippines

CHAPTER I THE PRE-HISPANIC PERIOD

The Philippines, an archipelago of over 7,000 islands, has a rich and varied history. The pre-Hispanic period, which lasted from the arrival of the first settlers to the Spanish conquest, is a period of great interest and importance.

The first settlers of the Philippines were the Negritos, who arrived on the islands about 30,000 years ago. They were followed by the Malays, who came to the islands about 2,000 years ago.

The Malays brought with them a highly developed civilization, which was based on agriculture, trade, and a system of social organization. They also brought with them a religion, which was a form of animism.

The Spanish conquest of the Philippines began in 1565, when Ferdinand Magellan discovered the archipelago. The Spanish government then sent a fleet of ships to the Philippines, which arrived in 1571.

The Spanish government then established a colony in the Philippines, which was to be a part of the Spanish Empire. The Spanish government then sent a fleet of ships to the Philippines, which arrived in 1571.
